STOP IN LIFE'S HURRY AND THINK ABOUT THE "LAST TIME."

Boys Should Learn to Endure Pain-Care of the Female Figure-Girls for Bousework-Woman's Influence-Food for Infants Household Hints, Items, Etc.

Did you ever stop, in the midst of life's tumultuous burry and flurry, and think to yourself about the "last time" that is on its way to you and to me! There will be a last time for the careless good-by thrown to wife and children as you hurry to the morning train. There will be a last time when your step will board the car and your form will mingle with the crowd of those who go about business when the day is new. There will be a last time to speak a kind word instead of a cross one, to give a smale for a frown. There will be a last time to mingle in the city's busy stream of life, to mount your of-fice stairs and sit at your desk. There will be a last time to seize the chance of honesty and of uprightness. There will be a last time to lanch, a last time to read the daily papers, a last time to watch the sun go down.
There will be a last time to spend a happy evening at home, and bestow your company. speech and manners upon the members of your own family circle. There will be a last time to say "good night," to turn out the lamps and woo the fickle goddess of slumber. There will be a last midnight and a last new dawning of a last day on earth.

Knowing all this to be so true, how shall we set about to keep the vigil of what may be the last hour we have to spend! Take the children first. If an angel from heaven came suddenly down and whispered in your ear, "The last day has come. You have but twelve more hours to live!" how, think would you set about to improve that time Weald you be anxious about the practice hours, the dress, the personal appearance of the little ones you would soon have to leave! Would you stop to train them how to dance, how to hold their hands in walking, how to pose or posture! Would you stop to think of minters to teach them to play, to paint, or to charm the shallow world with any gift of alluring grace! Would you care whether their dress was stylishly cut and made, or their garments freshly laundried and daintily trimmed: Would you give a second thought to any gift this world has in its power to bestow, whether of wealth or beauty or social honor! I think not. Fac-ing that last time to be together, I think your mind would turn to sweeter, purer things, and you would say something to this effect. "The time has come, my little es, when I must go and leave you. You will be alone in the world to-morrow, so far mother love goes, and I pray you be last words. Be pure in all things; despise evil companionships and evil conversation and evil books. Keep your heart like a spotless flower, however you keep your outward garb. Carry back your soul to God unde-filed as the June evening carries upon its bosom the morning's rose.

"Be true always. You may be poor and have to win your bread, but keep your lips from speaking untruths and your heart from brooding deceit. Honest speech may not win you many friends, but such as it does win for you will be worth the keeping. Re-member, in friendship as in precious stones, it is not the quantity but the quality which

The man who forgets a friend in time of need will make a no account sort of angel if ever will make a no-account sort of angel if ever he manages to slip into heaven. He isn't worth his keep either here or yonder. And finally, little children," you would say, "re-member and let love hold its beautiful sway in your hearts and homes forever. Never be ashamed to show the demons love, for love is God and where it dwells is the temple of God, whether it be roofed in by thatch or canopied with royal splendor. No home can be utterly unhappy where love is; no heart can go far astray held by love's bands; no soul can perish upborne by the wings of pure and steadfast love." So saying, you would bid the wondering little ones good-by and walk with covered face inte the Shadow of Death's soft and dusky wing. —"Amber" in Chicago Journal.

rule of the house, the idea being to accuston the children to endure pain and inconven tence, of which princes and princesses have an ample share. There is, in truth, no pro-fession in Europe more arduous and exacting but we all have to bear an immense amo of pain. We all have to do many things that we do not want to do, and to abstain from doing many things we very much want to do. This is the human lot, and there is no possibility of avoiding it. No people suffer so much as those who rebel against this law of our being, and no people suffer so little as those who cheerfully accept it.

The hardening system can be carried too for, but surely it is an essential part of training to acquire the power to endure inevitable pains with some resolution and dignity. We heard the other day of a fam seven persons, no two of whom could take the same kind of drink at breakfast. One had to have coffee; one must have green tea; another would be wretched without black tea; another knew no joy in life until she had her chocolate; another compromised upon cocoa; the sixth could only drink milk and the seventh water. These people had cultivated and indulged their preferences until they thought their special beverage essential to the prolongation of their lives.

Many mothers sedulously nourish such fancies, and soften their darlings by bestowing torrents of sympathy upon every bruise and bump. Boys soon acquire the habit of exaggerating their mishaps, and learn how to get the dainties they delight in by preending to loathe the food that is good for

"Don't give that puppy any meat," says the dog doctor. "But he won't est anything else," replies the boy. "Then," rejoins the healer of dogs, "leave his meal with him till he does eat it."

As it is with dogs, so it is with boys. Fool-ish fancies depart from boys when they are so happy as to have a keen appetite, and the boy who knows that no one will pick him up and kiss him will get up himself and rub his own head if it is bruised.—Youth's Compan-

To Secure a Good Figure If you want the grand, sloping shoulders of the Venus, which make the waist small in proportion, you can find no exercise equal to proportion, you can find no exercise equal to pumping water, and if you have a force pump about the house reserve the use of it for yourself. Begin with ten minutes' work, the wet towel pinned tightly round the hips, correct off and a Mother Hubbard gown on, which is the best modern version of the Greek rote possible. Wet the head well, for the exercise will pump the blood well over the body, heating the temples and spine; roll up your sleeves, sponge and wipe the arms dry, and go to work moderately at first. In ten minutes or less quit, sponge off the muscles that quiver and burn, drop into an easy seat and rest ten or fifteen minutes, then pull again, resting and working for an hour. Keep this up a month and you won't know your shoulders and arms for the same. Walker in his well known work on artistic beauty says the absence of fine arms in women is due to long sleeves and want of exercise. Pumping, sweeping, spinning, throwing the state of the same.

men is due to long sleeves and want of exer-cise. Pumping, sweeping, spinning, throw-ing stones at a mark and playing quotts are all better than tennis or rowing to secure finely modeled arms and busts.

The way to get the most benefit from work is to time one's self and see how much can be done in a quarter hour, a half hour and so on till the sweat flows, that great restorer of the complexion and refiner of the figure. It carries off the grossness of the body and though it is a proverb in outspoken districts that such a one is "too proud to sweat," and I have heard ladies of middle station in sethat such a one is "too proud to sweat," and I have heard ladies of middle station in society aver that they never perspired, as if it were a sign of gentility. They never failed to pay the penalty in thick sallowness of face and adipose. The moderate, easy going woman grows fat. The active, quick footed one keeps down her flesh and shows as trim a waist and ankle at 45 as she had at 20. That waist and ablic at ab as she had at 20. That fatal thickening at the back of the neck, by which men profess to know women past 40, is an unnecessary consequence. The woman who uses the shoulders freely and rapidly will show as flat and fine an outline of the back at 60 as my beautiful Italian "Reading Girl," and there is hardly a pleasanter sight after the roses and hily figure of 16 than one of these trim, nice, wholesome ladies of 60, with a waist as fine as that of her own granddaughter. A woman who is too fine to work is too fine to be fair, and she will be stout—the one fatal defect in a woman of

To secure the round slenderness, which is far enough removed from vulgar plumpness, care must be given to the nutrition of the skin. The hot soap and water bath should be taken and the skin dried in a warm room be taken and the skin dried in a warm room by brisk rubbing with a towel. Friction with the hand should follow, and when the skin glows to reduces it is to be anoisted from head to foot with plenty of pure clive or almond oil. These are chosen as being nearly identical with the composition of human fat and quickly assimilated. The rays of the sun, falling directly on the skin, have the most potent effect, increasing its activity for the exchange of worn out particles and deposit of new ones.—Shirley Dare's and lemon juice is frequently effective

The people of New England not many years ago were "wiser in their generation." They designated the female who was emago were "wiser in their generatio ployed to do housework as the "help," though she discharged the same duties as the "hired she discharged the same duties as the "hired girl" in a western village or the "domestic servant" in any of our large cities. "Help" sounds much better than "hired girl" or any kind of "servant." It implies an associate and suggests some sort of equality. The in-ference is that a belper is somewhat inferior to the person she assists, but a reasonable explanation of this is afforded by the cir-cumstance of youth and inexperience, conditance of youth and inexperience, conditions that are very flattering to a young woman. The word "help" or "helper" does not suggest positive inferiority, but intimates that the person to whom the term is applied is fairly capable, trustworthy and is in the way of advancement. A bad word or phrase often does a good deal of misc When this is the case it is best to allow it to become obsolete. Many a good woman has lost her "help" by referring to her as her servant. Most persons are servants one way or another, but no one likes to be called so.

The question of how to obtain and keep reliable, efficient and capable girls for doing usework, like the poor, is always with us. The demand for such girls constantly in-creases. The supply in city or country is never equal to the demand. In turn, Amer-ican, English, Irish, German and Scandinavian girls have shown a disinclination to engage in domestic service partly on ac-count of the unfortunate name. No intelli-gence office is needed for supplying "sales-ladies," dress makers, milliness, stemogra-phers or typewriters. It is seldom accessary to advertise for any of them. They do their own advertising and make personal ap-plication for positions.—Chicago Times.

In regard to the quantity of food suitable for an infant, there are a great many very erroneous notions which should be corrected. The stomach of a child under 4 months old will hold, in its natural condition, only abo a small wineglassful. Of course by stretch ing—for it is very classic—it can be made to hold several times that quantity, but, when so distended, it presess upon the other organs, When this fact is known, the folly of allowing the child to feed from a bottle cor pear evident. When the stomach is dis vomiting is often the measure of relief. In distention, when the superfluous food is not thrown off, the baby is fretfel and cries with pain. It is overloading the stomach which frequently excites colic. Mothers seldom ognize the fact, however, and, as a rule nterpreting the little one's cries as an evidence of hunger, go on giving it more food and making matters worse. Permanent distention of the stomach is not infrequently the sequence of overfeeding, the organ, which is elastic, losing its power of contracting to its original size. When such a condition exists, the sufferer wastes away even when the proper food is given in correct quantity.— Boston Herald.

low soft voice and refined thoughts of an educated and delicate woman, Isn't the moonlight brighter, the night air purer, the world better worth living in when we leave the presence of a good woman than when the swinging door of a saloon closes behind us and a burst of fetid atmosphere follows us into the street! No man ever yet reformed unless under some such influence, and I don't believe any man ever feit such influences without a sense of his own unworthings and a momentary resolution to cut his low ac-quaintances and habits. I am not saying that he did it. There's nothing so weak in the world as a man's resolution to reform. But you can always tell when a man has been spending an ovenling with a charming, refined woman. You sometimes, you know, meet a man coming down the street about II o'clock. He is walking with a firm tread, his bead up in the air. He may be humming something; he is proud of himself; he has a dignity about him tent you can see in the dark. He is been there and he can't help showing it. You are a very common, poor object to him. He despises you; for hasn't he been virtaous! The modern ideal home is just as much an intellectual and emotional work as an essay or a poem. A book is a collection of thoughts. Such also is a dwelling house, and the woman who has in some degree fa hiered it is as much an intellectual creator as is the masculine toiler whom we call an empty for root or the state of the stat complete or poet or dramatist. While, therefore, the new home of our age is the result of the great and free woman, it is also the cause and has made woman the possessor of an intellectual power which she could not an intellectual power which she could not claim in the cabin and tent period. The house has helped to create the new woman.— Good Housekeeping.
